Teaching Criminal Justice in college

Teaching Criminal Justice at the Undergraduate Level: You will need a Master’s Degree!

As a law enforcement officer you have spent a career learning, teaching, and gaining valuable experience in the Criminal Justice field. You may be looking at retirement as an opportunity to teach at colleges or universities and to help give back to a new generation of criminal justice practitioners. This presentation will help to answer questions many have asked.

- How should you prepare to teach at the undergraduate level?
- Credentials, what are they and why do they matter?
- What is the difference between a cv and a resume?
- How is teaching in a higher education institution different from training in public safety?

Where: Columbus Division of Police Academy (Hague Avenue)
When: May 8, 2015 10:00 AM-11:30 AM
RSVP: jonathan.mccombs@franklin.edu

NO COST SEMINAR

Jonathan McCombs, MSCJ

McCombs is the Lead Faculty in Criminal Justice at Franklin University. He brings ten years of experience in higher education in hiring over 300 adjunct and full-time faculty to teach college courses.

He holds a Masters in Criminal Justice and is in the dissertation phase of his Ph.D. in Criminal Justice. Prior to his higher education career he was a police officer, narcotics investigator, and law enforcement administrator.